TRAVERSE INDEPENDENCE COMMON ASSESSMENT TOOL FOR ADULTS LIVING IN THE COMMUNITY AND RESIDENTIAL CARE SETTINGS

INTERRAI COMMUNITY HEALTH ASSESSMENT (CHA)

The goal of Traverse Independence has always been to offer you the highest standard of care and ensure that you receive the right services at the right time to support your ability to live independently in your community.

Many new tools have become available that enable Traverse Independence and other health service providers to consistently deliver quality care. One of those tools is the InterRAI Community Health Assessment (CHA).

WHAT IS THE INTERRAI CHAI?

The InterRAI CHA (or RAI CHA) is a comprehensive and standardized assessment that helps to identify your support needs.

With the information provided, together we are able to better understand your current status in order to determine which services could enhance your ability to live as independently as possible.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?

With the RAI CHA, you have direct input into addressing your needs and concerns so that we can get a clearer picture of your specific support needs.

WHAT CAN YOU EXPECT?

The RAI CHA will be completed once a year by a Traverse Independence employee. The assessment will be planned with you around the time of your annual service plan. With your consent, you (along with your caregiver) will be asked a series of questions about your functional abilities, social activities and overall health status.

The RAI CHA information will be entered into a computer and will assist us to develop the appropriate service plan. You will also be asked if you agree to have Traverse Independence share your assessment with other health service providers that are working with you.
